

Innovation Mentoring

Sophie Mather, Material Futurist with biov8tion is a world-renowned innovator, entrepreneur and business owner. She accredits success to 25 years of first-hand experience across the sustainable innovation landscape in Europe, Asia and the USA working with a diversity of innovators from new business spin outs, manufacturing partners and global corporate brands.

Fuelled by the 'bumps in the road' as opportunities, she excels at turning innovation challenges around by demystifying the complex, and inspiring fresh approaches.

Why?

You have a phenomenal opportunity to commercialise your truly innovative idea, however you are working with an over stretched internal team and lack the brain space needed to fully maximise your work.

What?

A fresh set of eyes into your business through structured and experienced innovation mentoring, to enable you to reach your full commercial opportunities.

How?

So that we can support you best, we work through the following process:

1. We ask you to fill out a 'Pre Meeting Form' to enable us to do the preparation needed ahead of a conversation with you. Included within this is an NDA to enable our conversations to be open and productive.
2. We also provide you with pre meeting details on biov8tion and Material Futurist, Sophie Mather so you can get an idea of how we have supported other businesses and innovation work from the student level, new business starts up and large multi-national corporations.
3. A 75-minute complimentary virtual meeting is scheduled to meet and ensure we are a fit for each other. As well as providing you an opportunity for your questions, 30 minutes of this session can be focused to a specific topic identified within your pre meeting form.
4. If we are a fit, together we work out a support structure that works for you. This is through a retainer-based thought partnership relationship which includes regular scheduling of more formal meetings with accountable actions, and more interim 'ask for help' email support.
